The Land family not only grow their own fruit, they also ferment it, distill it, bottle it, label it and sell it at the Chattooga Belle Farm Distillery, which is one of the many facets of their farm.

Chattooga Belle Farm: Paradise in the Upstate

LONG CREEK--Chattooga Belle Farm's most valuable assets are intangible: the joy and commitment of the family who own it, the stunning views, and the diversity that keeps people coming back to this paradise.

When Ed Land decided in 2008 that it was time for a career change, he turned his eyes towards 138 acres of land in Oconee County. He and his wife Kitty named their farm after Ed's grandmothers, Laura Belle and May Belle, and created Chattooga Belle Farm.

This special place is not just acres of soil, but it embodies a spring of energy that flows through all the animals and plants that find a home on its grounds. The farm has a variety of produce that not only looks good but tastes good. The view of the mountains behind acres of apple and peach orchards, Muscadine and scuppernong vines, and blackberry, raspberry and blueberry bushes immediately catches the eye.

Paw paws, just one of the many exotic fruits grown on the farm, are a native fruit found all over the Southeast. Land describes them as a cross between banana, mango and nut pudding. Native Americans called them the fruit from the gods. The farm also grows persimmons, Asian pears and figs. Black Angus cattle feed on the rich grass.

Chattooga Belle Farm is known for its small batch distillery that makes three brandies, two whiskeys, one moonshine and one vodka. Land said, "Moonshine is the raw product of anything. When it first comes out of the still, it is moonshine. What comes after is the whiskey, and we don't make wimpy whiskey around here."

The Lands are also contributing to the well-being and growth of the area. As the farm expands and develops, the property is in need of more caregivers, so Land is continuously seeking more farm workers and creating jobs in the Upstate.

Land manages the farming, building, retail and service divisions of the business. He says when you are operating a business, it is your job to be a part of every aspect of that corporation. "If you're not growing you're backing up," Land stated. "You always need to be moving forward in a business."

The joy that the farm brings the Land family is clear with every word they speak, and they pride themselves in sharing that beauty with others. They host many events annually, including more than 70 weddings last year.

In addition to the distillery, Chattooga Belle's farm store is open every day. Along with a wide selection of signature soups, salads and sandwiches, Belle's Bistro serves wine made from the fruits grown on the farm. Lunch is served Tuesday through Sunday.

The 18-hole disc golf course features stunning views of the Blue Ridge Mountains with major elevation changes and water hazards. Farm tours allow groups to learn how the dirt beneath their feet turns into yummy things to eat.

A natural event that the family eagerly awaits is the Aug. 21 total eclipse of the sun. Chattooga Belle lies directly in the path of totality, where the full effects of the eclipse can be viewed. Land says the eclipse will be even more stunning when paired with the breathtaking vista views at Chattooga Belle.

Food trucks, distillery tours, music, astronomy talks, star-gazing, yard games and more will be available during Eclipse Fest 2017. For ticket information visit chattoogabellefarm.com.

Advocates for Agriculture

Twelve years ago, an effort to establish a coalition of industry organizations to help market and promote South Carolina products beyond the normal scope of the Department was launched. SC Advocates for Agriculture is the foundation that was started. It is a non-profit group that promotes the overall industry of agriculture in the state. Members of the board include diversified business people in areas that are directly associated with agribusiness.

Organizations represented include the Palmetto Agribusiness Council, Clemson PSA, Farm Bureau, SC State University, Farm Service Agency, FFA, SC Agricultural Education, the SC Forestry Association, several producer members, and, of course, the SC Department of Agriculture. The members have a vested interest in agriculture in South Carolina and are dedicated to improving an already strong industry.

Since the inception of this organization in 2005, Advocates for Agriculture has privately raised more than $750,000 for worthy causes, including Plant It Forward SC, which offered flood relief for farmers in 2015, the Commissioner's School for Agriculture, FFA, 4-H, and Farm Bureau's Ag in the Classroom, to name a few.

Each year, Advocates recognize individuals who have made significant contributions to SC agriculture and have gone above and beyond to leave a lasting impact on the industry. At the annual Advocates of the Year Recognition Reception on Aug. 3, we will be honoring one person from the private sector and one from the public sector. This year's recipients are Jim Roquemore of Orangeburg and Representative Davey Hiott of Pickens.

For many farming operations, grass is one of the challenges to a successful crop. For others, however, grass is big business, with horticulture generating millions of dollars for our farm economy. Nobody knows grass better than Jim Roquemore, who is the CEO and Chairman of the Board of Patten Seed Company. You may know this company by its trade name, Super-Sod. Maybe you've seen those green and yellow trucks on the interstate.

The business dates back to 1894, under the direction of Jim's grandfather and father, and now under Jim's leadership. Patten Seed Company grew from a small-town general store in Lakeland, Georgia to a corporation having a number of sod and seeds farms located throughout Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina. Among numerous other roles, Jim currently serves as chairman of the SC Conservation Bank and has been a past chairman of Palmetto Agribusiness Council, as well as having served on the Board of Visitors and Advisory Council of Clemson University. Jim and his wife Karen give their time and energy to many worthwhile community causes.

Our public service honoree is Representative Davey Hiott from Pickens. As Chairman of the Agriculture, Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs Committee in the House of Representatives, he is certainly a friend to agriculture. Chairman Hiott has served the people of Dacusville, Liberty, and Pickens in the SC State House since 2005 and has consistently gone to bat for our industry.

For example, this past session, he sponsored legislation that allowed SCDA to be the regulatory authority for the new Produce Safety Rule, instead of the federal government. He also worked tirelessly to pass legislation to update regulations that will allow our South Carolina poultry farmers to better compete with neighboring states. Getting to know and work with Davey has been a great privilege and pleasure for me.

Advocates for Agriculture is always open to any ideas folks might have about future programs to benefit SC agriculture. Be sure to visit their newly redesigned website at scadvocates4ag.org for more information.

Solar Power is Topic at Ag Council

Public Is Invited to Aug. 17 Meeting

Matt Warren, the CEO and founder of Warren Solar, will address the S.C. Agricultural Council at its next meeting. His topic is solar power.

South Carolina is experiencing one of the largest solar booms in the country, and Warren Solar is working around the clock to help people become SOLAR emPOWERed™.

Warren started his company about 10 years ago, after having worked in the solar industry and also as operations manager for a large vegetable producer.

"My goal is to take the human element and the weather out of agriculture," he said. "We can put solar power at the well for a farmer, so he doesn't have to wait on utilities." He added that going off the grid can save them money.

Warren Solar deals only with agricultural applications, including hydroponic crops, vineyards, kale production, and vegetables. Solar power and technology can benefit everyone from farm-to-table markets up to commercial vegetable producers.

The meeting, which is open to the public, will be held on Thursday, Aug. 17 at the SC Farm Bureau Office in Cayce from 11 a.m.—1 p.m. Lunch is served at 11:30. The cost, which includes lunch, is $10 for members and $15 for non-members. The deadline for advance reservations is Aug. 11, but guests are welcome at the door.

Send checks to Steve Slice, PO Box 2683, Columbia, 29201 or call 803-777-2875 for more information.
